ABOUT BOISDALE

With striking red interiors, a uniquely intoxicating and welcoming Scottish atmosphere, Boisdale is founded on the unexpected but happy marriage of modern British food, Scottish produce, Cuban cigars, the very best live music and whisky. The first Boisdale restaurant opened on Eccleston street in Belgravia in 1989 followed by Canary Wharf in 2011 and 35 years later is still something of a London institution and a very much-loved fixture on the Belgravia dining scene.

Boisdale offers relaxation and entertainment throughout its diverse range of dining rooms and bars, each with its own unique style, character and atmosphere. The many period details including richly panelled walls and an eclectic collection of classic and modern paintings and prints, provide a perfect setting for live jazz from the '30s, '40s and as well as other genres from blues to soul.

Whether you're planning an intimate gathering or a grand celebration, Boisdale offers the perfect space for you, accommodating seated parties of 12 to 46 guests, standing receptions for up to 60 or for an exclusive hire from 250 seated or 550 for a canape and drinks reception.

The quintessence of highland hospitality – welcome to your home away from home.
